About the Ibagiw 2026 Logo

For its ninth year, the Ibagiw Creative Baguio Festival gathers once again under a theme the Creative Baguio City Council (CBCC) chose unanimously: RIKUS: A Creative Circular Baguio. It is a theme about sustainability, yes — but also about people, and what they build together.

Look at the logo closely and you'll find a pinecone viewed from its top. Its scales spiral outward in a pattern that ancient cultures across the world have recognized as something true about nature — and about life. In the Cordillera, that truth shows up everywhere: in how Igorots work the land with the seasons, in dances performed in rounds, in rituals that mark the turning of life from one stage to the next.

Twenty-eight pinecone scales make up the logo — 27 in green, one in gold at the center. The greens shift through three shades, moving the way life does: layered, continuous, never quite the same twice. That single gold scale? It marks the things people return to. Family. Work. Culture. The festival itself.

Woven into those colors is a much older story. Green, white, and gold were Baguio's original colors during the Spanish and early American period — green for its mountains and trees, white for the Benguet lily, gold for the grazing land. Using them here is a quiet nod to where the city comes from, even as the festival looks ahead.

RIKUS asks a simple question: what does it look like when a city truly takes care of its own? Skills passed down. Materials used again. Creative work that finds its way back to the community that made it. Baguio has been living this out for years — it was the first city in the Philippines named a UNESCO Creative City of Crafts and Folk Arts, built on the shoulders of its weavers, woodcarvers, artists, and makers. RIKUS doesn't just celebrate that. It invites everyone in.

Together, the logo's elements tell the story RIKUS is built on: that creativity, like nature, is most alive when it moves in circles — renewing, returning, and growing with each turn.

RIKUS is Baguio’s commitment to advancing circular creativity, where culture, community, and sustainability move together in continuous cycles of learning, making, sharing, and renewal.
